

ORANGE PEAL

Program Information

November, 6th 2024

Orange County CSI Chapter

Program:    Plan for Change - Design for Resiliency, Sustainability, Health & Wellness

Panel:        Tony Giansanti

Regional Sales Manager | Tate Access Floors, Inc.

If you are interested in designing for sustainable building operations and occupant use, this meeting is for you!

Tony Giansanti of Tate Access Floors, inc. will explain the integration of raised access floors into the design of a commercial building to achieve better lifecycle alignment between infrastructure distribution and base building design. He will cover the system components, features and benefits, carbon and life-cycle impacts and market adoption.

Tony Giansanti will describe underfloor service distribution components and how to best integrate it into the building core and shell, including first cost analysis. He will explain the benefits associated with underfloor service distribution, including increased flexibility and adaptability, better indoor air quality, improved comfort and energy savings. You will gain knowledge of the long-term benefits associated with integrating underfloor service distribution as part of base building including reducing waste and carbon generation while increasing the building value. He will also review current market adoption across a wide range of building sectors and emerging sectors. This course qualifies for HSW credit. | LU/HSW Credits
